THE ESPORTS TRAINING NETWORK

An innovative educational ecosystem for esports professionals, dedicated to promoting high standards and fostering global growth opportunities.

The Esports Academy Network (EAN) serves as a global platform for training and development in esports, where sponsorships play a key role in supporting the network's growth. Companies that become sponsors of the EAN gain not only international exposure but also actively contribute to new educational opportunities and collaborative synergies among the sector's key players.

Types of Sponsorships

EAN offers several sponsorship options tailored to meet diverse company needs. The primary categories include:

1. Technology sponsors: strategic partners providing digital infrastructure and tools to enhance educational pathways.
2. Financial sponsors: companies that provide funding for events and international training projects.
3. Commercial partners: organizations that supply goods or services to support EAN's training activities.

Benefits for Sponsors

Being a sponsor of EAN provides exclusive advantages that expand brand presence and enable connections with a diverse network of esports stakeholders, including:

- Global visibility: logo and promotional materials featured across EAN's official channels.
- Engagement in training activities: active involvement in developing training programs by contributing resources and expertise.
- Collaboration with Federations and Training Institutions: direct access to emerging talent and new business opportunities.

Sustainability and commitment

Sponsorships ensure the network's long-term sustainability, allowing EAN to broaden its training offerings and reach an expanding audience of academies and students. Sponsor companies share EAN's mission of promoting excellence in esports education, contributing to a more inclusive and innovative ecosystem.

In conclusion, sponsorships not only offer visibility but also represent a concrete commitment to the sector's development and the creation of a new generation of well-trained professionals.
