THE ESPORTS TRAINING NETWORK

Join us in building an innovative esports ecosystem where collaboration and high-quality training create new pathways for success.

Membership in the Esports Academy Network (EAN), managed by Independent Electronic Sports (IES), provides a strategic platform for organizations and professionals in the global esports industry. The network fosters collaboration, training, and research, with a focus on developing internationally recognized educational programs of excellence.

Membership categories

EAN welcomes several categories of members, including:

- National esports federations: recognized by Olympic committees or Ministries of Sport.
- Training companies: private enterprises and non-profit organizations engaged in esports education.
- Partners: educational institutions, public bodies, sponsors, and professional organizations.

Membership process

A formal application initiates the membership process, followed by review from the EAN Steering Committee. Each member must pay an annual fee, which varies according to membership category, and abide by the internal regulations.

Member benefits

Membership offers valuable benefits, including:

- Access to educational programs: participation in certified courses and research projects.
- International visibility: inclusion of the member logo on EAN's official channels.
- Collaboration and networking: connections with federations and partners for joint initiatives.

Member obligations

Members are required to:

- Pay annual membership fees.
- Comply with IES decisions and actively participate in initiatives.
- Promote the network through their official channels.

EAN membership empowers organizations worldwide to play an active role in shaping the future of esports, contributing to the development of skilled talents and professionals and promoting high standards of quality globally.
